

ABSTRACT

An improved E-mail method is provided that includes a message stage for generating a message, an addressing stage for addressing an envelope for sending the message and a stuff and send step for sending the message wherein the addressing stage is not permitted until the message is proofed and signed and the stuff and send email stage is not permitted until the addressing is listed and approved.